James Legge and the Chinese Classics Marilyn Laura Bowman 2016-08-31 James Legge (1815-1897), was a great Scots scholar and missionary famed as a translator of the Chinese Classics when struggles between Britain and China included two wars. It was an era of sailing ships, pirates, opium wars, the swashbuckling East India Company, cannibals eating missionaries, and the opening of Qing China to trade and ideas. Legge was vilified by fundamentalist missionaries who disagreed with his favourable views about Chinese culture and beliefs. He risked beheading twice while helping Chinese individuals being terrorized during the Taiping Rebellion. He became so ill from Hong Kong fevers when only 29 that he was forced to return to the UK to save his life. Recovering, he and his three talented Chinese students attracted such interest that they were invited to a private meeting with Queen Victoria. Legge thrived despite serious illnesses, lost five of his 11 children and both wives to premature deaths, survived cholera epidemics, typhoons, and massive fires. He was poisoned twice in a famous scandal, helped save a sailing ship from fire on the high seas, took in a bohemian Qing scholar on the run, foiled a bank-bombing plot, and earned enmity in the colony for providing court testimony about translation that favoured accused Chinese men rather than the colonial authorities. Legge's resilient responses and incredible productivity reflected the passion he had developed at the age of 23 for understanding the culture of China. He retired to become a Fellow of Corpus Christi College and the first Professor of Chinese.

Classical Network Theory Vitold Belevitch 1968

Architecture, Disciplinarity, and the Arts Andrew Leach 2009 There is a great deal of interest and activity in the interdisciplinary space between the visual arts and architecture. Many artists use building materials or architectural representations. Architects and critics speak, with few cautions, of architecture as "art". Is it possible, then, that architecture is returning to a longer-term, older position as an art with sibling relations to other disciplines? What is it today to speak of architecture as an art, and what should we make of the long history of this question? The essays in this volume address these issues on conceptual and historical grounds, the writers drawing from papers and discussions presented at a colloquium of the Architecture Theory, Criticism and History (ATCH) Research Group of the University of Queensland, Australia, hosted by Brisbane's Institute for Modern Art on August 17 and 18, 2007.

When You Only See One Set of Footprints Darlene Jackson 2012-03-01 As I was called, like Abraham, to leave my father's house and follow Christ, my journey would take me and my children to many places which God has caused us to "Triumph" in Christ Jesus. I was told to share my story and write the things I've seen and heard and lived through so others can know they too can do the same when they put ALL of their Trust in the Holy God of Israel. When You Only See One Set of Footprints is like an open letter to all "Living Epistle," for my life has seen everyday living and living for Christ. To give people hope no matter where you are, He can be there, also to show my children and others what "Faith" looks like despite what people think it ought to look like, to give people hope and encouragement to follow God to the end. This was also a walk for the destroying of "Generational Curse" so my children (Donelle, Nathifa, Monae, Dominique, Nakeya, Simone), and now my grandson (Nook, Nook), would not have to encounter because I have gone before them to destroy all curses in their path. To bring about transparency in this walk and to show "We can come through all things through Christ who strengthens us," so may all be encouraged as well as inspired to continue in the faith and to fight the good fight of faith and know you fight not alone, for you too can see there were only one set of footprints. God Bless.

Arming the British Police Roy D. Ingleton 1997 Retired from 26 years as a policeman in Kent County, Ingelton presents the views for and against the British police carrying arms on a regular basis. He looks at the history of violent crime in the country, violence against the representatives of law and order, and the extent to which British police have had recourse to firearms in the past. He also compares the situation in other countries. He takes no position on the question, other than to hope that it will be settled with the fullest possible knowledge. Distributed in the US by ISBS.
