The Northstar motor, produced by General Motors (GM) from 1993 until 2011, was a premium 90° V engine series and GM's first manufacturing V-8 with overhead camshafts¹. Nonetheless, in spite of its original accomplishment, the Northstar engine has been connected with a number of issues over the years and years. One of the most usual troubles is overheating, which can cause significant destruction to the engine block. Another problem is oil use, which can cause poor fuel efficiency and expensive repairs. Many Northstar engine proprietors also mention problems with head gaskets, which can result in overheating issues and lead to expensive repairs. Particularly, the Northstar engine models from 1993 to 2005 have been documented to have leakage troubles, cracked seals, harmed head gaskets, more oil loss, harmed valve cover, malfunctioning water pumps, and carbon accumulation. These problems are not major, but the expense to repair the troubles was considerably greater than a lot of other engines due to the detailed engineering.

Engineering Economics and Cost Estimation is a vital aspect of any engineering project. It involves present and future economic factors, making it critical to obtain reliable estimates of future costs, benefits, and other economic parameters. Engineers often deal with projects whose scale, complexity, and uncertainty call for sophisticated approaches to planning and budgeting^{[2][1]}. Several methods are used for cost estimation, including rough estimates, semi-detailed estimates, or detailed estimates, depending on the needs for the estimates^{[^1][2]}. Key concepts in this field include overhead costs, cost driver identification, cost allocation methods, capital budgeting, flexible budgeting, zero-based budgeting, budgets, and estimates. A number of models are available for developing cost (or benefit) estimates, such as the per-unit model, the segmenting model, cost indexes, the power-sizing model, and learning curve cost estimating. The quality of a cost estimate typically increases as the resources allocated to developing the estimate increase.
