The work “Analyzing Casual Conversation” by Suzanne Eggins and Diana Slade, originally issued in 1997, develops a methodical model for the examination and portrayal of casual conversation in English. The writers argue that in spite of its occasionally aimless appearance and seemingly unstructured substance, casual conversation is a very structured task and performs a vital role in the social construction of reality. The work works through authentic samples of casual conversations entailing participants varying in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class¹². Deriving on perspectives from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the publication provides readers with the analytical skills to describe the layers of structure and critical interpretive models to clarify the ‘social work’ that goes on through chat.

The Journey of a Thousand Miles

He was tired of his existence. He was bored, depressed, and unfulfilled. He had a job he hated, a manager he despised, and a partner he didn’t love. He had no enthusiasm, no aim, no significance. He felt like he was misusing his time, his potential, his being. He wanted to change, he wanted to escape, he wished to survive. He decided to resign from his employment, to split up with his significant other, to dispose of his possessions, and to acquire a one-way ticket to the other side of the globe. He didn’t realize where he was going, he didn’t understand what he was performing, he didn’t realize what he was seeking. He only understood that he had to leave, that he had to investigate, that he had to discover. He started on a trip of a thousand miles, a trip of thrill, of challenge, of education, of development, of transformation.
