The publication "Analyzing Casual Conversation" by Suzanne Eggins and Diana Slade, first issued in 1997, establishes a systematic model for the analysis and depiction of casual conversation in English. The authors contend that despite its at times aimless appearance and seemingly unstructured material, casual conversation is a very structured activity and has a vital role in the social construction of reality. The publication goes through real instances of casual conversations entailing participants differing in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class<sup>12</sup>. Deriving on perspectives from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the book furnishes readers with the analytic skills to portray the levels of structure and critical interpretive models to explain the 'social work' that occurs on through chat.

Alice was perpetually captivated by the aged mansion perched at the end of the street. Stories of its reclusive owner, who never ventured out of his secluded abode, had always piqued her curiosity. Whispers circulated about his identity, ranging from a loner to an intellectual or even an eccentric, depending on the source. Alice yearned to unravel the truth behind these tales and uncover the secrets concealed within the bolted door on the second floor. Driven by an irresistible urge to delve into the mansion's mysteries, Alice embarked on a reckless escapade. With a heart pounding with a mix of anticipation, she furtively ventured into the mansion's grounds, her senses heightened as she approached the off-limits door on the second floor. Standing before the threshold, her hand trembling slightly as she reached for the doorknob, Alice braced herself for the revelations that awaited her beyond. With a deep breath, she turned the knob, the door creaking open to unveil a sight that would forever alter her perception of the world.

Sam awoke with a jump, his body drenched in sweat. The same horrific nightmare had once again plagued his sleep, the one where he was hunted by a shadowy figure wielding a knife. He glanced at the clock; it was 3:15 am. He tried to soothe his racing heart, attempting to convince himself that it was merely a product of his subconscious. Yet, deep down, he knew it was far more than that. He knew the enigmatic figure was tangible, and it was closing in towards him. He had seen it before, in the frightening news reports, in the detailed police sketches, in the stricken faces of the victims. It was the notorious serial killer that had been terrorizing the city for what seemed like an eternity. And Sam was his next target.

He was weary of his living. He was dull, sad, and unfulfilled. He had a job he hated, a supervisor he abhorred, and a partner he didn't cherish. He had no zeal, no purpose, no significance. He sensed like he was misusing his time, his possibility, his being. He wanted to alter, he wished to run away, he wished to live. He decided to resign from his employment, to split up with his significant other, to get rid of his belongings, and to buy a direct fare to the far end of the world. He didn't realize where he was heading, he didn't know what he was performing, he didn't know what he was looking for. He only realized that he had to go, that he had to discover, that he had to uncover. He set out on a voyage of a thousand distances, a trip of thrill, of obstacle, of learning, of progress, of transformation.
