Assessment of Fuel Economy Technologies for Light-Duty Vehicles

2011-06-03 National Research Council Various combinations of commercially available technologies could greatly reduce fuel consumption in passenger cars, sport-utility vehicles, minivans, and other light-duty vehicles without compromising vehicle performance or safety. Assessment of Technologies for Improving Light Duty Vehicle Fuel Economy estimates the potential fuel savings and costs to consumers of available technology combinations for three types of engines: spark-ignition gasoline, compression-ignition diesel, and hybrid. According to its estimates, adopting the full combination of improved technologies in medium and large cars and pickup trucks with spark-ignition engines could reduce fuel consumption by 29 percent at an additional cost of $2,200 to the consumer. Replacing spark-ignition engines with diesel engines and components would yield fuel savings of about 37 percent at an added cost of approximately $5,900 per vehicle, and replacing spark-ignition engines with hybrid engines and components would reduce fuel consumption by 43 percent at an increase of $6,000 per vehicle. The book focuses on fuel consumption—the amount of fuel consumed in a given driving distance—because energy savings are directly related to the amount of fuel used. In contrast, fuel economy measures how far a vehicle will travel with a gallon of fuel. Because fuel consumption data indicate money saved on fuel purchases and reductions in carbon dioxide emissions, the book finds that vehicle stickers should provide consumers with fuel consumption data in addition to fuel economy information.

The work "Analyzing Casual Conversation" by Suzanne Eggins and Diana Slade, originally released in 1997, develops a systematic model for the analysis and depiction of casual conversation in English. The writers assert that notwithstanding its at times aimless seeming and seemingly unstructured material, casual conversation is a very structured undertaking and plays a critical role in the social building of reality. The book goes through genuine examples of casual conversations involving participants diverging in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class¹². Deriving on understandings from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the work equips readers with the analytical skills to depict the levels of structure and critical interpretive models to explain the 'social work' that goes on through chat.
