The work "Analyzing Casual Conversation" by Suzanne Egings and Diana Slade, first published in 1997, develops a organized model for the analysis and portrayal of casual conversation in English. The scholars argue that despite its at times aimless look and apparently unstructured material, casual conversation is a extremely structured task and plays a critical part in the social construction of reality. The publication proceeds through authentic examples of casual conversations entailing participants varying in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class12. Pulling on insights from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the book equips readers with the examinative skills to depict the layers of structure and critical interpretive structures to elucidate the 'social work' that happens on through chat.
