Basic Knowledge and Conditions on Knowledge

2017-11-01 Mark McBride How do we know what we know? In this stimulating and rigorous book, Mark McBride explores two sets of issues in contemporary epistemology: the problems that warrant transmission poses for the category of basic knowledge; and the status of conclusive reasons, sensitivity, and safety as conditions that are necessary for knowledge. To have basic knowledge is to know (have justification for) some proposition immediately, i.e., knowledge (justification) that doesn't depend on justification for any other proposition. This book considers several puzzles that arise when you take seriously the possibility that we can have basic knowledge. McBride's analysis draws together two vital strands in contemporary epistemology that are usually treated in isolation from each other. Additionally, its innovative arguments include a new application of the safety condition to the law. This book will be of interest to epistemologists—both professionals and students.

First Love that Never Fades

Anna could never erase from memory her first love, Leo. Their paths had crossed when they were both 16, at a magical summer camp. They were inseparable, spending every day laughing, exchanging heartfelt thoughts, and sharing stolen kisses. Their bond was unbreakable, and they vowed to maintain their bond, to cherish their connection, and to love each other forever. But life, as it often does, had other arrangements in store for them. They lost communication, they moved on with their lives, and they eventually married other people. Years passed, and the whirlwind of life took them in different directions. But fate, it seems, had not forgotten their unbreakable connection. At a chance encounter, at a long-awaited reunion, their paths crossed once again. The moment they laid eyes on each other, the spark of their connection rekindled. The same undeniable attraction that had drawn them together years ago was still palpable. They felt the same excitement that had fueled their teenage romance, but they also felt the burden of their past. Their emotions swirled for the unwavering devotion they had shared, but their minds grappled with the challenges of their current lives. They were caught in a conflict of the heart, torn between the alluring memories of their first love and the stability and security of their present. They stood at a crossroads, forced to make a difficult choice. Would they choose the all-consuming passion of their first love, risking the uncertainty that lay ahead, or would they hold onto the predictability of their current lives, forever wondering what could have been? Only time would tell if their unbreakable bond would find a way to prevail.
