Job Creation in the Manufacturing Revival

2012-10-07 Marc Levinson

Dynamic Manufacturing

1988 Robert H. Hayes
Writing for general managers, the authors go beyond manufacturing structural decisions to actually changing the infrastructure of a manufacturing company-- the leadership and vision, the policies and practices that are vital to creating superior factories and a dynamic learning continuum.

Future of Jobs

IntroBooks Team Times are changing and the labor markets are under immense burden from the collective effects of various megatrends. Technological growth and grander incorporation of economies along with global supply chains have been an advantage for several workers armed with high skills and in growing occupations. However, it is a challenge for workers with low or obsolete skills in diminishing zones of employment. Business models that are digitalized hire workers as self-employed instead of standard employees. People seem to be working and living longer, but they experience many job changes and the peril of skills desuetude. Inequalities in both quality of job and earnings have increased in several countries. The depth and pace of digital transformation will probably be shock Industrial robots have already stepped in and artificial intelligence is making its advance too. Globalization and technological change predict the great potential for additional developments in labor market performance. But people should be ready for change. A progression of creative annihilation is probably under way, where some chores are either offshored or given to robots. A better world of for jobs cannot be warranted - a lot will be contingent on devising the right policies and institutes in place.

The Fourth Industrial Revolution

2017-01-03 Klaus Schwab World-renowned economist Klaus Schwab, Founder and Executive Chairman of the World Economic Forum, explains that we have an opportunity to shape the fourth industrial revolution, which will fundamentally alter how we live and work. Schwab argues that this revolution is different in scale, scope and complexity from any that have come before. Characterized by a range of new technologies that are fusing the physical, digital and biological worlds, the developments are affecting all disciplines, economies, industries and governments, and even challenging ideas about what it means to be human. Artificial intelligence is already all around us, from supercomputers, drones and virtual assistants to 3D printing, DNA sequencing, smart thermostats, wearable sensors and microchips smaller than a grain of sand. But this is just the beginning: nanomaterials 200 times stronger than steel and a million times thinner than a strand of hair and the first transplant of a 3D printed liver are already in development. Imagine "smart factories" in which global systems of manufacturing are coordinated virtually, or implantable mobile phones made of biosynthetic materials. The fourth industrial revolution, says Schwab, is more significant, Downloaded from ramifications more profound, than in any prior period of human history. He outlines the key technologies driving this revolution and discusses the major impacts expected on government, business, civil society and individuals. Schwab also offers bold ideas on how to harness these changes and shape a better future—one in which technology empowers people rather than replaces them; progress serves society rather than disrupts it; and in which innovators respect moral and ethical boundaries rather than cross them. We all have the opportunity to contribute to developing new frameworks that advance progress.

It was the time 2023, and the earth was on the brink of conflict. The USA and Peoples Republic of China, the two world powers, had been locked in a ferocious contest, competing for assets, influence, and control. They had developed advanced arms, such as laser weapons, drones, and space crafts, which could hit any place, moment. They had also secretly constructed space stations, that could deploy atomic weapons, which can destroy the planet. They were both set to use them, if ever needed. But they were the sole ones. There existed a 3rd entity, a secret entity, which had been observing them both, waiting patiently for them, preparing for them. They were the ETs, and they had come to stop them both. They had come to save the globe, or to end it all. They had arrived to initiate the space wars that altered history.

He was tired of his living. He was dull, sad, and unfulfilled. He had a job he detested, a supervisor he despised, and a girlfriend he didn't cherish. He had no enthusiasm, no aim, no value. He felt like he was wasting his moment, his potential, his being. He desired to change, he desired to escape, he desired to survive. He chose to resign from his employment, to end things with his significant other, to dispose of his possessions, and to purchase a direct ticket to the other side of the globe. He didn't understand where he was going, he didn't realize what he was carrying out, he didn't understand what he was seeking. He only realized that he had to depart, that he had to discover, that he had to uncover. He set out on a voyage of a thousand miles, a trip of excitement, of difficulty, of learning, of growth, of transformation.
