The book "Analyzing Casual Conversation" by Suzanne Egging and Diana Slade, originally published in 1997, develops a methodical model for the study and description of casual conversation in English. The scholars contend that despite its at times aimless look and seemingly unstructured material, casual conversation is a highly structured undertaking and performs a critical function in the social construction of reality. The book proceeds through real examples of casual conversations entailing participants diverging in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class12. Deriving on perspectives from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the book equips readers with the analytical skills to portray the strata of structure and critical interpretive frameworks to elucidate the 'social work' that goes on through chat.

The field of Engineering Economics and Cost Estimation is a crucial aspect of any engineering project. It involves current and upcoming economic factors, making it essential to obtain dependable estimates of future costs, benefits, and other economic parameters. Engineers frequently deal with projects whose scale, complexity, and uncertainty call for advanced approaches to planning and budgeting [1]. Various methods are used for cost estimation, including rough estimates, semi-detailed estimates, or detailed estimates, depending on the needs for the estimates [2]. Key concepts in this field include overhead costs, cost driver identification, cost allocation methods, capital budgeting, flexible budgeting, zero-based budgeting, budgets, and estimates. A number of models are available for developing cost (or benefit) estimates, such as the per-unit model, the segmenting model, cost indexes, the power-sizing model, and learning curve cost estimating. The quality of a cost estimate usually increases as the resources allocated to developing the estimate increase.
