Ideas and Weapons 1998-05 I. B. Holley, Jr. Given the enormous destructive capacity of precision weapons in the modern era and the inherent vulnerabilities of modern society to high technology attack, this book is more relevant today than when it was first written in the midst of the nuclear age, in 1953. Remaining one of the finest texts ever written on the history of warfare and weapons acquisition, this is a thorough and reliable work that should be a standard reference for acquisition managers and decision-makers, providing a guide to informed decision-making that reflects the experience and lessons of the past. Human Factors Models for Aviation Accident Analysis and Prevention 2015-03-28 Dr Thomas G C Griffin Aviation is a complex system, and the investigation and modelling of aviation accident causation can suffer from being artificially manipulated into non-complex models and methods. This book addresses this issue by developing a new approach to investigating aviation accident causation through information networks, which centralise communication and the flow of information as key indicators of a system's health and risk. The book's new model offers many potential developments and some key areas are studied in this research, maintaining firm focus on the overall health of a system.

Biorefining of Biomass to Biofuels 2017-11-06 Sachin Kumar This volume focuses on the prospects of the conversion of biomass into biofuels including ethanol, butanol, biogas, biohydrogen, biodiesel, syn-gas and other useful products. Biomass-derived fuels have gained tremendous attention worldwide. However, due to high raw material and processing costs, biofuels produced from lignocelluloses have been found to be more expensive than conventional fuels. Therefore, a concept of biorefining has been introduced, where more than one product or each and every component of biomass may be derived into useful products in a manner of petroleum refinery.

The chapter opens with a dialogue on the characteristics of groupings and periodic groups, elucidating how the Russian chemist Mendeleev ordered elements by their weight in ascending order. It then explores the concept of outer electrons and energy levels of atoms, highlighting the role of valence electrons in chemical reactions and alterations to atoms and molecules.

The chapter additionally distinguishes between transition elements and main elements, detailing on their features and attributes. It also describes the notion of ionization energy and its tendencies among groupings and periods on the periodic table.
