It had been the year 23, and the world was at the edge of conflict. The U.S. and China, the two global powers, were locked in a ferocious contest, contending for supplies, influence, and dominance. They had both developed sophisticated armaments, such as laser weapons, drones, and orbiters, that could strike any location, any moment. They had also covertly built space stations, that could deploy nuclear missiles, that can destroy the earth. They were both set to utilize them, if necessary. But they were alone. There was a third power, a secret force, which had monitoring them, waiting for them both, preparing for them both. They were the ETs, and they had arrived to halt them. They had come to protect the globe, or to terminate it all. They had come to initiate the galactic wars which transformed past.

The book "Analyzing Casual Conversation" by Suzanne Eggins and Diana Slade, first issued in 1997, develops a systematic model for the examination and depiction of casual conversation in English. The authors contend that in spite of its at times aimless look and seemingly unstructured content, casual conversation is a very structured task and has a critical function in the social construction of reality. The book proceeds through genuine samples of casual conversations including participants varying in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class¹². Deriving on perspectives from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the book provides readers with the analytical skills to depict the levels of structure and critical interpretive models to elucidate the 'social work' that occurs on through chat.
