The book "Analyzing Casual Conversation" by Suzanne Eggins and Diana Slade, first published in 1997, establishes a organized model for the examination and description of casual conversation in English. The authors assert that notwithstanding its at times aimless look and ostensibly unstructured material, casual conversation is a very structured activity and has a vital role in the social building of reality. The work goes through real instances of casual conversations including participants differing in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class<sup>12</sup>. A number of models are available for developing cost (or benefit) estimates, such as the per-unit model, the segmenting model, cost indexes, the power-sizing model, and learning curve cost estimating.
