The publication "Analyzing Casual Conversation" by Suzanne Eggins and Diana Slade, originally published in 1997, creates a methodical model for the analysis and description of casual conversation in English. The writers argue that in spite of its at times aimless look and apparently unstructured material, casual conversation is a very structured activity and has a critical function in the social construction of reality. The book proceeds through authentic examples of casual conversations entailing participants diverging in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class12. Drawing on perspectives from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the publication equips readers with the examinative skills to portray the strata of structure and critical interpretive structures to elucidate the 'social work' that goes on through chat.
