Thermodynamics of Solutions

2009-06-17 Eli Ruckenstein This book consists of a number of papers regarding the thermodynamics and structure of multicomponent systems that we have published during the last decade. Even though they involve different topics and different systems, they have something in common which can be considered as the "signature" of the present book. First, these papers are concerned with "difficult" or very nonideal systems, i. e. systems with very strong interactions (e. g. , hyd- gen bonding) between components or systems with large differences in the partial molar v- umes of the components (e. g. , the aqueous solutions of proteins), or systems that are far from "normal" conditions (e. g. , critical or near-critical mixtures). Second, the conventional th- modynamic methods are not sufficient for the accurate treatment of these mixtures. Last but not least, these systems are of interest for the pharmaceutical, biomedical, and related ind- tries. In order to meet the thermodynamic challenges involved in these complex mixtures, we employed a variety of traditional methods but also new methods, such as the fluctuation t- ory of Kirkwood and Buff and ab initio quantum mechanical techniques. The Kirkwood-Buff (KB) theory is a rigorous formalism which is free of any of the - proximations usually used in the thermodynamic treatment of multicomponent systems. This theory appears to be very fruitful when applied to the above mentioned "difficult" systems.

It was a dark and stormy night. The rain was falling heavily, and the wind was whistling. In the middle of the town, there was a gallery, where a invaluable diamond was on show. The diamond was called the African Star, and it was the biggest and most gorgeous diamond in the earth. It was guarded by a sophisticated security setup, and a squad of weaponized guards. No one could rob it, or so they assumed. But an individual did. Somebody managed to get around the protection, to evade the watchmen, to shatter the window, and to take the diamond. And no one saw them, no one listened to them, no one knew who they were. They exited no trace, no clue, no proof. They disappeared into the nightfall, with the African Star.
