If you feel a bit cross at the presumption of some oik daring to suggest everything you know about education might be wrong, please take it with a pinch of salt. What if everything you knew about education was wrong? is just a title. Of course, you probably think a great many things that aren't wrong. The aim of the book is to help you
'murder your darlings'.
David Didau will line after the experience. It seems reasonable to suggest that only if a theory or approach can withstand the fiercest scrutiny should it be encouraged in classrooms. David makes no apologies for this; why wouldn't you be sceptical of what you're told and what you think you know? As educated professionals, we ought to strive to assemble a more accurate, informed or at least considered understanding of the world around us. Here, David shares with you some tools to help you question your assumptions and assist you in picking through what you believe. He will stew findings from the shiny white laboratories of cognitive psychology, stir in a generous dash of classroom research and serve up a side order of experience and observation. Whether you spit it out or lap it up matters not. If you come out the other end having vigorously and violently disagreed with him, you'll at least have had to think hard about what you believe. The book draws on research from the field of cognitive science to expertly analyse some of the unexamined meta-beliefs in education. In Part 1; 'Why we're wrong', David dismantles what we think we know; examining cognitive traps and biases, assumptions, gut feelings and the problem of evidence. Part 2 delves deeper - 'Through the threshold' - looking at progress, liminality and threshold concepts, the science of learning, and the difference between novices and experts. In Part 3, David asks us the question 'What could we do differently?' and offers some considerations insights into spacing and interleaving, the testing effect, the generation effect, reducing feedback and why difficult is desirable. While Part 4 challenges us to consider 'What else might we be getting wrong?'; cogitating formative assessment, lesson observation, grit and growth, differentiation, praise, motivation and creativity.

Moving the Construction Safety Climate Forward in Developing Countries

2023-04-28 Tchad Sharon Jatau The construction industry in developing economies is responsible for creating deliverables such as infrastructure and housing while providing a means of livelihood to an ever-increasing number of management and frontline workers. However, in many parts of the world, injuries and fatalities have continued to damage the industry's image. This book intends to meet the needs of many construction managers who, though technically informed, struggle with managing frontline workers, especially regarding motivating positive safety outcomes. It discusses the challenges experienced in the industry and how site management may navigate them to improve safety performance in the workplace. By documenting the experiences of site management in developing countries, this book intends to contribute to the education of professionals on evolving better safety environments on construction sites. It considers the safety climate in a high-risk work environment, administrative procedures and the implementation mechanisms. The book also documents findings from existing literature about developing countries in contrast to what is obtainable in developed countries. Each chapter features

First Love that Never Fades

Anna could never forget her first love, Leo. Their paths had crossed when they were both 16, at a magical summer camp. They were drawn to each other like magnets, spending every day exchanging lighthearted banter, exchanging heartfelt thoughts, and sharing stolen kisses. Their bond was unbreakable, and they vowed to keep in touch, to remain faithful, and to never let their love fade. But life, as it often does, had different plans in store for them. They lost track of each other, they moved on with their lives, and they eventually married other people. Years passed, and the hustle and bustle of life took them in different directions. But fate, it seems, had not forgotten their undeniable connection. At a chance encounter, at a nostalgic reunion, their paths crossed once again. The moment they laid eyes on each other, the embers of their affection rekindled. The same undeniable attraction that had drawn them together years ago was still unmistakable. They felt the same excitement that had fueled their teenage romance, but they also felt the burden of their past. Their souls ached for the unconditional love they had shared, but their minds grappled with the complexity of their current lives. They were caught in a conflict of the heart, torn between the alluring memories of their first love and the complications of their present. They stood at a critical juncture, forced to make a difficult choice. Would they choose the intense connection of their first love, risking the unpredictability that lay ahead, or would they hold onto the predictability of their current lives, forever wondering what could have been? Only time would tell if their unwavering connection would find a way to prevail.
