He was exhausted of his life. He was dull, sad, and discontented. He had a employment he despised, a boss he loathed, and a girlfriend he didn't love. He had no enthusiasm, no aim, no value. He believed like he was misusing his time, his capability, his being. He wanted to modify, he desired to run away, he desired to survive. He resolved to leave his employment, to break up with his girlfriend, to dispose of his possessions, and to acquire a direct pass to the opposite end of the earth. He didn't realize where he was proceeding, he didn't understand what he was carrying out, he didn't realize what he was seeking. He only understood that he had to leave, that he had to explore, that he had to uncover. He started on a journey of a thousand distances, a trip of adventure, of challenge, of knowledge, of growth, of transformation.

Defending a thesis title requires a process where you demonstrate and explain your proposed research to a committee of evaluators. This is a typical practice in many schools where panels are formed to assess and criticize research titles before they are permitted to proceed with the actual research. The defense typically consists of a question-and-answer session designed at demonstrating the significance of the research you have selected and determining if you, as a student, are actually competent of achieving it.

It had been the time 23, and the globe stood at the brink of conflict. The U.S. and PRC, the pair of superpowers, had been entangled in a intense competition, contending for supplies, dominance, and control. They had both engineered sophisticated weapons, including lasers, unmanned aerial vehicles, and satellites, which could strike any place, any moment. They had clandestinely established orbital stations, that can deploy nuclear missiles, that could obliterate the earth. They were both set to use them, if necessary. But they were alone. There was a third force, a hidden power, which had been monitoring them both, waiting for them both, preparing for them both. They were the ETs, and they had come to halt them. They had come arrived to save the earth, or to end it. They had come come to start the galactic wars which transformed history.
