Who's in Charge?

2011-11-15 Michael S. Gazzaniga "Big questions are Gazzaniga's stock in trade." —New York Times "Gazzaniga is one of the most brilliant experimental neuroscientists in the world." —Tom Wolfe "Gazzaniga stands as a giant among neuroscientists, for both the quality of his research and his ability to communicate it to a general public with infectious enthusiasm." —Robert Bazell, Chief Science Correspondent, NBC News The author of Human, Michael S. Gazzaniga has been called the "father of cognitive neuroscience." In his remarkable book, Who's in Charge?, he makes a powerful and provocative argument that counters the common wisdom that our lives are wholly determined by physical processes we cannot control. His well-reasoned case against the idea that we live in a "determined" world is fascinating and liberating, solidifying his place among the likes of Oliver Sacks, Antonio Damasio, V.S. Ramachandran, and other bestselling science authors exploring the mysteries of the human brain.

The Mystery of the Missing Diamond

It was a dark and stormy night. The rain was pouring down, and the wind was howling. In the middle of the city, there was a museum, where a priceless diamond was on display. The diamond was called the Star of Africa, and it was the largest and most beautiful diamond in the world. It was guarded by a high-tech security system, and a team of armed guards. No one could steal it, or so they thought. But someone did. Someone managed to bypass the security, to evade the guards, to break the glass, and to take the diamond. And no one saw them, no one heard them, no one knew who they were. They left no trace, no clue, no evidence. They vanished into the night, with the Star of Africa. And the mystery of the missing diamond began.
