Galactic Conflicts which Changed History

It was the time 23, and the world was on the verge of conflict. The USA and China, the pair of world powers, had been locked in a fierce competition, competing for resources, dominance, and supremacy. They had engineered advanced weapons, including lasers, drones, and spacecrafts, which can attack anywhere, any time. They had clandestinely established space stations, which can deploy atomic weapons, that can annihilate the earth. They were both prepared to use these weapons, if at all necessary. But they were not the sole ones. There was a 3rd power, a hidden entity, which had monitoring them both, waiting for them both, getting ready for them both. They were aliens, and they had come to stop them both. They had come arrived to save the world, or to finish it all. They had come come to initiate the space wars which transformed chronicle.

The publication “Analyzing Casual Conversation” by Suzanne Eggins and Diana Slade, originally issued in 1997, develops a organized model for the analysis and portrayal of casual conversation in English. The writers contend that in spite of its sometimes aimless appearance and seemingly unstructured content, casual conversation is a very structured activity and has a vital role in the social construction of reality. The publication goes through genuine samples of casual conversations involving participants differing in age, gender, ethnicity, and socio-economic class12. Pulling on understandings from sociology, linguistics, and critical semiotics, the book furnishes readers with the analytical skills to depict the levels of structure and critical interpretive models to elucidate the ‘social work’ that occurs on through chat.
