Michael Ray 2005-04-20
A new twist to the Genesis story, a what if... What if it started on the other side of the Galaxy? What if the good vs. evil was not so easy to determine? Again God intervenes and gives the job to the 'Guardians,' angels in mortal form. The Guardians are to lead the fight for the Books. Satan adds his two cents worth and he grooms a son to lead his cause on Earth. Tark Karis, a mortal, born to serve only one, Satan. Good vs. Evil, the ultimate and timeless challenge.Will they find support throughout the rest of the Galaxy?

The Silicate War has been over for fifteen years, and the tension among the dominant galactic races is growing. Many fear that the Umblegarri, the ancient alien race that ushered humanity into the interstellar galactic community during the Silicate War, have been targeted for conquest by the Crax and their allies. It's no longer speculation. The invasion is underway and Kra finds himself strapped to a hospital bed, critically injured and surrounded by hostile corporate lawyers, high ranking military and intelligence officials, ambitious members of the criminal justice apparatus, and an Umbelgarri diplomat. All are demanding answers or their pound of flesh. Krakista Keesay, a Class 4 Security Specialist, doesn't have the answers they demand. Why did he sabotage a top secret research facility? What was he doing on a quarantined planet? Why did he set up the civil transport Kalavar for destruction? Is that all? Not even close. Kra turns to his only option: Allow his brain to be hooked up to an experimental device so that he might prove his innocence. Or lose his mind.

The Tarazet Galactic Star Empire should be a realm without hunger, disease, violence or suffering, but the nobility are out of touch, terraforming entire planets just so they can hunt the best game. This is creating the conditions for... rebellion.Over the course of three books (Galaxy Dog, Iron Dart, and Sun Chaser) Altia, the most prominent young scientist in the empire, Knave, a young soldier, and Jay, a humble logistics robot, are sucked ever deeper into this rebellion, and then rise to become its leaders. There are plenty of space battles, unknowable aliens, and galactic power struggles in the series. These are not dry old books full of visionary concepts but dull on action, plot, and characters, it is a series that combines the action of militaristic science fiction with the heart of good space opera.The only reason the heroes have any chance of surviving in the face of the repression of the Tarazet Star Empire is the alien starship they discover. What this spaceship is capable of becomes apparent in the second book, and in the third installment the entire star empire is slowly destabilized by this new force in the galaxy. It seems, at last, as though the empire might topple, bringing a new utopia, or possibly just political chaos in its wake.

Smith's novels are generally considered to be the classic space operas, and he is sometimes called the "first nova" of twentieth century science fiction. Smith expressed a preference for inventing fictional technologies that were not strictly impossible (so far as the science of the day was aware) but highly unlikely: "the more unlikely the better" was his phrase.

Her mission is to capture a Boskonian ship intact so that the Lensman my find the secret to the Boskonin phenomenal speed. On Station J. Slater 2015-06-17 In the Military, if you screw up, you either get busted or promoted. Sergeant Phelan Oscar Piran, formally of the Galactic Council Marine Corps, discovered that both can happen. If it wasn't enough trouble being the oldest Ensign in the Galactic Council Navy, call sign J-Pop, he's getting pulled back into the Clan's business. He's not a Druid, having failed the Ritual, but he is a member of the Clan. "Piran right?" Keitaro asked while cracking his knuckles and rolling his shoulders, "You know that my Commander on the docks is pretty pissed at you." "Along with a lot of other officers," I replied, "He'll have to stand in line." "I don't think so," he said moving so fast I didn't have time to block the jab to my chin. My head snapped around and his fist in my ribs dropped me to my knees. Perfect, because his knee caught my chin, I flew back, and landed on the hardwood decking. Now I had a splitting headache, hurting side and there was a ringing in my ears. "That enough for your officer?" I mouthed not sure if the words actually came out. "Not near enough," Keitaro sneered. I think, I mentioned that he was a sadistic fighter. "Get up, I haven't even worked up a sweat yet." He stood back and I climbed to my knees trying to clear my head. In a hand to hand contest, he out classed me like a thousand to one. If I stood, he'd put me down again. The young sailor from the gel track finished and quickly gathered up his stuff. When he passed the nearest exit, I was puzzled. He looked familiar but I was too fuzzy to place his face. "I haven't got all night Marine and there are a lot of moves I need to practice," my assailant said. Well, it wouldn't matter if I showed up at the trial a beaten mess. Before I could push off the deck, a pair of fighting sticks came sliding to within an arm's length from my hand. The young sailor had done me a favor. The fighting sticks were made of heavy wood. There were two of them and while not cutting weapons, they were hard hitting. Did I mention that my parents were Druids? from an early age, our Clan's kids played with fighting sticks. "Hello friends," I said scooping up the heavy sticks. "I'm not your friend," Keitaro said misunderstanding my words. "Not you," I said standing. I swing the sticks around in a pattern. He lowered into a fighting stance while I increased the speed of my motions. "There are nine angles of attack." I said stopping the movement. "Head strikes, left and right," I said demonstrating. "Elbow strikes again left and right," I continued by showing the strikes to the elbows of an invisible man. "Knees, left and right. Vertical up strike to the center of the body followed by a downward strike also to the center of the body starting with the head." He was bouncing now getting ready to launch his attack. From this distance, I figured it would be a kick. His right leg shot out snake quick but I'd been waiting for it. I stepped into the kick so it just brushed my hip. I drove the point of my right stick into his stomach. "Basic strike nine is a jab to the center of the body," I said. He was muscular so the jab didn't do any damage but it did back him up a step. Perfect, two quick strikes to his neck disrupted the blood flow to his head. Then, I was all over him with basic strikes before he could recover. As he moved left, I hit him on the right, he dodged right and I hit him on the left. I had a lot of bottled up issues that night and I should have ended it quickly. Instead, I began a series of patterns, quick strikes that flowed from one stick to another with almost no time between hits. The faster I moved the more blistering the damage to my opponent. I've got to give it to him, he didn't go down fast and so he absorbed a lot more then he should have. Finally, he dropped into a fetal position and screamed, "Stop, please stop." I stopped, leaned down and said, "Are you sure, I haven't even broken a sweat yet?" "Yes, enough." Did I mention that my parents we Battles at Zeta Reticuli (SpaceFed StarShips Trilogy, Book 1, 2nd Edition) Gerry Saunders 2015-12-06 In the year 2146 the new Earth Federation had come into being. But, by the year 2235, the E.F. having reached the limits of tolerance with past wars, and being worried about the future, had founded the present Space Federation and banned all military operations in Space.The Space Federation itself was a non-military organisation, and was funded by the E.F. There had been a previous attempt to turn it into a Space Navy. But, this had been firmly rejected, and it continued on in the way it had originally been envisaged, with the exploration and scientific research of Space as its primary aim. However, a certain amount of weaponry was of course required to protect the ships and their crews. By the spring of 2301 the Earth Space Federation finally received the Adromeda7 interstellar StarShip. She had been built in the starship construction facility on Mars and was the first in a new generation of ships that were equipped with the latest in weaponry, and advanced comms systems. The comms systems also enabled Andromeda's central computer to communicate with the Commander and his crew via transceiver implants that had been inserted into their brains. The Andromeda was powered by a Photon Drive for sub-light speed travel. While the newly upgraded Warp drive had extended the ship's jump range, making it possible for the Andromeda and her Commander to carry out their first mission together. This was: One: To find the Starship Hawk. She had been commissioned in 2290 and sent to Procyon in Canis Major. But had disappeared under mysterious circumstances. By 2295, with nothing having been heard of her since, she was feared lost. Two: To locate the missing settler starship the Acarea, which had been powered by the now obsolete nuclear pulse engine. The Acarea had been launched almost two hundred years earlier before the faster-than-light barrier was broken by the warp-drive. She had a specially selected crew, plus eighty-five settlers. The ship was self-sustaining and had been equipped with everything needed to allow the settlers to start a new life on one of the planets orbiting Procyon. It was to be 'The Great Adventure.' Earth's first real attempt at colonising the stars. However, as most people now believed that it would have been virtually impossible for this type of binary star to have habitable planets. It was a mystery why the Acarea had been sent to Procyon in the first place. And, the disappearance of this ship was perhaps the greater mystery of the two. Richardson's final remit was to search for any habitable planets in nearby star systems. The dangers facing Richardson, his crew, and their newly acquired faster-than-light StarShip. May well be more than a single ship can cope with when the humans find the Hawk hanging derelict in space some nine light years from Earth, and just three light years from Procyon. They eventually learn that the damage may have been caused by a bombardment of high energy particles. Or, by negative mass. Later, they realise that the Hawk has been destroyed by an alien species. A species who are more advanced than them by virtue of the weaponry employed. The aliens, having been monitoring their movements, then attack them. But in the cat and mouse chase through space that follows the humans manage to destroy the alien ship, and continue on towards Procyon, in their search for the Acarea. But they leave knowing that, if the Andromeda had been captured, these aliens would have known where Earth was within moments of the ship being seized. These aliens, however, are an aggressive species hell bent on taking over all inhabited planets, wherever, and whenever they can find them. They pursue the humans, who suddenly find themselves thrown into a deadly and bitter interstellar war. Could this be the end of the Andromeda, and of Earth?

The Adamski and Menger Series: the Galactic Confederation: What to Do about Corrupt Governments Lucus Louize 2018-05-29 NOTICE The articles in this book can be found for free via online videos at youtube user Libertad450 channel. This ebook for people who would like some of the writings in ebook form rather than video form.Lucus Louize, the author of many UFO Galactic Federation books, tends to be controversial by claiming the Space Brothers do Not come from Venus or any other local planets and instead come from other parts of the galaxy or universe. Louize sites information from Mass Contacts which states the opposing groups manipulated the memories of Federation contactees. The Alliance have stated on their website page 'Spurious Contacts Files' the Galactic Federation contactees such as Adamski, Menger, ect ect had their memories manipulated by opposing groups to falsely believe the Space Brothers come from Venus or other local planets in order to discredit their contactee message. Louize is also controversial for stating that anyone can actually make telepathic contact and possibly eventually meet a real space brother as Louize states there are many undercover Federation agents in our society (just as Adamski, Nelson and Menger claimed) however the Space Brothers anyone could potentially meet would be their undercover agents that would radiate very powerful Universal Love energy from their bodies and while they would never openly admit who they are, however they would create 'co-incidences' through technological imprinting to the brain with their technology from a distance so you are aware of who they are. Louize also states they would never give anyone any high level intel about their group because we are not members of their federation yet. Louize also maintains they are physical people and not 'etheric'. Books by Louize definitely do not have the best grammar, nor the best formatting, however Louize maintains, those who are sincere in support of the Galactic Federation will find eventual positive results if they follow the advice in his books. Curious people, internet trolls, those open to the idea of UFOs, Cointelpro types, and sincere supporters of the Space Brothers, Louize's books are open to all, however only those sincere in support of the Federation and God may find eventual positive results.Info about the Alliance online at Brother Bob Renaud's official UWA Alliance TerraKor Web Site. Galactic Patrol E. E. Smith 2017-09-30 Galactic Patrol introduces Kimball Kinnison, who will be the hero of the next four books - Galactic Patrol, Gray Lensman, Second Stage Lensmen and (to a lesser extent) Children of the Lens. Kinnison and Clarissa MacDougall are the penultimates of the human breeding program the Arisians set up many eons earlier. The book deals with the earliest stages of Kinnison's career, starting with his graduation as a Lensman from the Patrol's academy. Organized pirates, known as Boskonians, have gained a great advantage with a new type of space drive, making their ships far faster than anything the Patrol can build. That is, with the exception of one ship, the Britannia. New and experimental, built to be the fastest thing in space, she has abandoned the traditional ray armament of a space ship for an offensive weapon much older - explosive artillery, fired at an opponent held in place by unbreakable tractor beams. Her mission is to capture a Boskonian ship of the new type intact enough to get the secret of her speed (hence the artillery, which the scientists of the patrol think can damage another ship enough to disable it without destroying the information they require). The experimental nature of her weapon means that she would be useless to a man experienced only in using the standard weapons of the time, so she is given to the inexperienced Kinnison to command...
